TO THE READERS OF MU MAGAZINE:

Welcome to a new school year with Monmouth University Magazine ... and to an all-new yearlong series of issues that focuses on a single, resounding theme: "Education Knows No Boundaries."

The icon you see on the corner flap will serve, if you will, as a "bouncing ball" (in this case, globe) that will give you a bird's-eye view of the boundless opportunities for pursuit of knowledge at MU. You'll find stories that dispel the fashionable myth of the confines of the classroom and champion the opportunities of off-site experiential learning, including ideas and ideals from Benjamin Barber that challenge us to think about democracy in a interdependent world; philosophy professor Alan Schwerin's insights on why we as human beings have the need to educate and be educated; an interview with Robyn Asaro on the study abroad program; and a visit with Finland native, 1992 MU graduate, and international businessman, Mika Romanoff on a stopover between his travels from New York to his current home base in London. And, of course, you will find listed in this issue our annual Honor Roll of Donors: the many contributors who have helped to burst the boundaries of educational opportunity at Monmouth University with their financial support of expanded curricula, renewed faculty resources, improved spaces for learning, and a vital and diverse student body from around the corner and across the globe.

We are also introducing a new section of the magazine in the winter issue called MailQuad. It will give readers an opportunity to communicate back to us in four different ways: e-mail, telephone, fax, or post. Any way you choose, we'd like to hear from you, and publish your commentary on the magazine and its contents.

Thank you for your readership, and we hope you enjoy the fall kick-off issue of our "Education Knows No Boundaries" series.

Monmouth Makes Strides With Record Enrollments and Higher SATs

In fall 2003, Monmouth University welcomed its best freshman class ever—best in terms of quality as measured by SAT scores. The class of 2007 has the highest average SAT score in Monmouth's history; at 1060, it represents a 27-point increase over last year's average. This accomplishment was monitored by Monmouth's Enrollment Planning Committee, which oversaw the strategy for the objective of improving student quality. This was accomplished by using a new predictive modeling tool that was developed at the University.

Total University enrollment for fall 2003 was 6,213, a record figure, up from 6,035 in fall 2002. The total undergraduate enrollment was 4,382 (including 466 transfer students). Graduate enrollment increased to 1,831 (up from 1,712 in fall 2002), also a record for Monmouth, with 681 new graduate students.

AN INTERVIEW WITH BENJAMIN R. BARBER

BY SALIBA SARSAR

WITH DOREEN BUCHMAN & IRENE FARRELL TOWT

MONMOUTH UNIVERSITY WAS HONORED TO HOST

internationally renowned political theorist Benjamin R. Barber as a special guest speaker at the University's 70th Founders' Day ceremonies on October 8, 2003. He was also awarded an honorary Doctor of Human Letters degree at the celebration. Barber, who is the Gershon and Carol Kekst Professor of Civil Society at the University of Maryland, brings an abiding concern for democracy and citizenship to issues of politics, culture, and education in America and abroad.

HIS 17 BOOKS INCLUDE THE CLASSIC STRONG DEMOCRACY (1984) AND THE RECENT INTERNATIONAL BESTSELLER JIHAD VS. MCWORLD. HIS ARTICLES HAVE APPEARED IN HARPER'S MAGAZINE, THE NEW YORK TIMES, THE ATLANTIC, AND THE NATION. BARBER'S MANY ACADEMIC HONORS INCLUDE GUGGENHEIM AND FULBRIGHT FELLOWSHIPS, AND HE HOLDS A CERTIFICATE FROM THE LONDON SCHOOL OF ECONOMICS AND POLITICAL SCIENCE AND A DOCTORAL DEGREE FROM HARVARD UNIVERSITY. IN THIS EXCLUSIVE INTERVIEW FOR MONMOUTH UNIVERSITY MAGAZINE BY DR. SALIBA SARSAR*, DR. BARBER SHARES HIS INSIGHTS ON RESPONSIBLE CITIZENSHIP, THE STATE OF AMERICAN POLITICS, AND THE FUTURE OF DEMOCRACY IN A GLOBAL SOCIETY.

ASSOCIATE VICE PRESIDENT FOR ACADEMIC PROGRAM INITIATIVES AND ASSOCIATE PROFESSOR OF POLITICAL SCIENCE, MONMOUTH UNIVERSITY

TELL US ABOUT YOUR CURRENT WORK IN PROGRESS, THE DECLINE OF CAPITALISM AND THE INFANTILIST ETHOS, WHICH IS SCHEDULED FOR PUBLICATION NEXT YEAR.

When we look at our society and see the way in which we are trying to turn children into consumers and consumers into children, the way in which we are selling abroad an American culture intended for teenagers (fast food, fast movies, fast music), it becomes apparent that capitalism in this consumer age has abandoned the values of early capitalism—such values as saving and entrepreneurship and individual autonomy—and put in their place the childish values of a consumer society where doing whatever you feel, responding to impulse, takes the place of serious adult behavior.

There has always been a tendency for societies to be seduced by the attractions of childhood, but generally the adult institutions of education, church, and state work to help us grow up. Increasingly, we are living in a society where the so-called adult institutions are anxious to keep us children. The media certainly work hard to infantilize us.

Our politicians do the same, and the result is a growingly infantile culture that endangers democracy. It endangers society. It endangers civilization.

As an illustration, take a look at California's recent election to replace embattled governor Gray Davis. A serious, democratic election was trivialized as a contest among Arnold Schwarzenegger, Gary Coleman, Angeline, and Larry Flynt and other publicity seekers following a recall election based on what the voters said was their dissatisfaction with the candidate, but on what in truth could be seen as the voters' dissatisfaction with their own vote. What California voters did in recalling Davis was to repudiate their own vote, basically trivializing our democratic system.

SO HOW DO WE INSPIRE PEOPLE TO GROW UP AND TO MAINTAIN THEIR COMMITMENT TO CITIZENSHIP AND TO DEMOCRATIC VALUES?

Well, I would put it a little differently. We need to stop "inspiring" people to not grow up, we need to stop encouraging them to stay children. To do this, we have to reexamine the social institutions that were, once upon a time, the agents of change and growth in American society, and that have now become agents of infantilization.

The media bears a special responsibility here. The media was once the fourth branch of government, with responsibility for citizenship and civic engagement. Today, the media, interested only in the profitability of the corporations that own them, have become an entertainment industry that acts to infantilize audiences. Our political system, of course, does the same. And, increasingly, politics has become another form of entertainment. Crossfire—people shooting verbal bullets at one another—is the term for political dialogue. It is the infotainment telesector representing what I have called "McWorld".

Some would even argue that fundamentalist religion is a kind of infantilization of adult religion. Adult religion is thoughtful.

It engages people in thinking about the dilemmas of human existence; contemplating the relationship between life and death; thinking philosophically and religiously about moral values. Religious fundamentalism puts in the place of thoughtful contemplation rather childish, comic book imagery, where God's a guy who sits in the seat next to you and holds your hand, where Jesus watches the scoreboard, and, if you pray to Him, helps you win baseball and football games. In the extreme, religious fundamentalism gives you a right to kill your opponents if they don't believe what you believe. There's no serious, adult religion in the world that sanctions murder as a weapon in its cause. But, in fact, fundamentalist religion, trivialized religion, factless religion often does just that.

So whether it's in advertising, politics, the media, religion, or what goes on in the malls of the world, we see forces

“... AMERICAN COLLEGES AND UNIVERSITIES REPRESENT SOME OF OUR NATION'S MOST EXTRAORDINARY CIVIC ASSETS...”

“ THE LONG-TERM
 PROBLEM FOR AMERICA IS THAT THE

 THEMSELVES AS CITIZENS,
 EVEN AS THEY EMPOWER THEMSELVES
 AS CONSUMERS.”

that, instead of helping us grow up, work very hard either to keep us children or to turn adults back into children. These are some of the issues I'm exploring in my new book.

➔ WOULD YOU TELL US ABOUT THE WORK OF THE DEMOCRACY COLLABORATIVE, PARTICULARLY THE PROJECTS YOU ARE SPEARHEADING IN YOUR NEW YORK OFFICES?

Well, if I am right in thinking that schools and universities should be on the side of democracy and work against trivialization; and if it's true—as many people would suggest and I would agree—that America's colleges and universities represent some of our nation's most extraordinary civic assets; and if Thomas Jefferson and John Adams were right that schools and universities ought to play a role in the education of citizens; then the question is: How can we turn the universities and colleges of America back into nurseries of democracy?

The Democracy Collaborative represents a group of colleges and universities that wants to see the university become a more effective asset in democratization, in citizenship, and in social responsibility. And so we are working with colleges, universities, and academic organizations where like-minded people can be found to create a model of what we call the “engaged university”—the university that's engaged not just through professional training and abstract scholarship and service to the corporate sector, but engaged in the classic American mission of public education, democracy building, and civic involvement. Being engaged means being involved in academic projects, like the development of a democracy studies curriculum within the university, but it also means using the assets of the university to help build civic competence, education, and democracy—locally, nationally, and internationally. The Democracy Collaborative has a whole series of projects aimed at trying to do that.

Well, there are two important ways in which any college and university—and certainly one with the history of civic responsibility that Monmouth University has—can become part of this collaboration. The most important is to make sure that the institution's own curriculum, its activities, and its role in the larger community play out in ways that service the civic and social needs of that community. And, you know, one doesn't have to join anything to do that. One has to develop appropriate curriculum, appropriate community service programs, and appropriate relationships between the faculty and research, on the one hand, and the problems of the community on the other.

But second, it's also possible for administration and professors and students who believe in and care about these issues to join with us in the narrower sense of actually acting as a collegial partner in the Democracy Collaborative. And we would certainly welcome that possibility.

Here's one immediate way to get involved. One of the recent major projects of the Democracy Collaborative was developing the Declaration of Interdependence and organizing the First Interdependence Day celebration, which was held two weeks ago on September 12th in Philadelphia and in Budapest and on a number of college campuses. We are currently preparing for next year's Interdependence Day activities in Rome, in Calcutta, in South Africa, and in many other places. But we are also looking for a number of college campuses to develop their own Interdependence Day activities; to expose students to the Declaration of Interdependence; to create dialogue about global interdependence and international issues within the academic curriculum. We would particularly welcome Monmouth University as a site for a set of events around Interdependence Day 2004 next September 12th.

WHY WAS SEPTEMBER 12TH CHOSEN, AS OPPOSED TO ANOTHER DAY?

September 11th was, of course, a day of national tragedy. It's now a day that calls for memorializing the dead and for reflecting on what we lost. The day after September 11th—September 12th—seemed to us an appropriate day to ask, “Now what? How can we change the world so that such acts will never again be possible or permissible?” So, we chose the day after September 11th as the day to look at and think about what interdependence requires of us, what democracy means to us, what citizenship compels us to do—not just locally, but globally.

PRIOR TO THE PRESIDENTIAL TERMS OF FRANKLIN D. ROOSEVELT, THE POWER OF THE PRESIDENT WAS CONTROLLED LARGELY BY CONGRESS. WHEN FDR PRESENTED THE “NEW DEAL” AS PART OF HIS LEGISLATIVE AGENDA, THE SCALES OF AUTHORITY STARTED TO TIP IN THE OPPOSITE DIRECTION. BILLS WERE PASSED THAT GAVE THE PRESIDENT MORE POWER TO MAKE LAWS—A TURN OF AFFAIRS THAT WAS NOT IN KEEPING WITH EITHER THE SPIRIT OR INTENTIONS OF THE FRAMERS OF THE CONSTITUTION. SHOULD THE CURRENT POWERS GIVEN THE PRESIDENT BE RESTRICTED, AND, IF SO, HOW?

Political scientists know that there are interesting institutional questions about the separation of powers, but it's my own view that the problems we face today are not institutional. In the traditional view, separation of powers and separation of parties means that no executive officer, however powerful, is likely to be able to get away with usurping power. We've already seen a lot of resistance to the Patriot Act. We've seen the total Information Awareness Act go down the drain because of the opposition from the American people. We've seen that even Republican-dominated courts have disagreed with our current Republican administration on a number of issues. So I don't think the problem is so much institutional as it is the growing trivialization—the “corporatization” and “mediation”—of politics that we see occurring. It's more a problem of the degree to which politics and democracy have become processes controlled by the corporate power of the media.

In other words, the problem is not that the government has too much power, but that, in some ways, that it has too little. In my work, I have identified the chief problem of the last 30 years as the ideology of privatization, which argues that markets

“WE NEED TO STOP ‘INSPIRING’ PEOPLE TO NOT GROW UP, WE NEED TO STOP ENCOURAGING THEM TO STAY CHILDREN.”

“UNLESS ALL
HAVE FREEDOM AND JUSTICE, IN THE FUTURE ...

NONE WILL HAVE IT,
—NOT EVEN AMERICANS.”

can solve every problem, and that states and democracy can solve no problem. It is privatization and marketization strategies that have actually undermined the authority of democratic governments. The recall election in California—like the Howard Dean and Wesley Clark candidacies, and like President Bush’s own candidacy in 2002—were all about anti-political candidates. All of them involved candidates who were running against government as outsiders. Whether or not then-Governor Bush or Arnold Schwarzenegger were really outsiders to the political process is an obvious question, but the fact that they identified themselves in that role and sold themselves as outsiders to politics, as non-politicians, suggests the degree to which democratic governments and democratic politicians have fallen into disrepute as a result of the privatization of politics.

So to come full circle back to the original question: Though the President in national security affairs and in war has a good deal of power, the long-term problem for America is that the American people seem to be disempowering themselves as citizens, even as they empower themselves as consumers. They are taking power from the political, where they have real representation, where there’s accountability, and turning it over to the economic sector, where they have no real power. And this means a kind of hemorrhaging of popular sovereignty in favor of the sovereignty of private corporations, the sovereignty of money, the sovereignty of the economic over the political. That strikes me as the more serious problem.

IN THE FEDERALIST PAPERS, JAMES MADISON STATED THAT THE LEAST DANGEROUS BRANCH OF GOVERNMENT IS THE JUDICIARY. HOWEVER, RECENTLY, THE JUDICIARY HAS BEEN ARGUABLY THE MOST IMPORTANT POLICY SETTER—IN ROE V. WADE AND BROWN V. BOARD OF EDUCATION, THE SUPREME COURT HAS BEEN THE FINAL ARBITER. COMPLICATING THE MATTER IS THAT THE SUPREME COURT IS THE ONLY BRANCH OF GOVERNMENT NOT ELECTED BY THE PEOPLE. IS THIS BALANCE OF POWER STILL VIABLE IN A GROWINGLY HETEROGENEOUS U.S. SOCIETY? DO YOU FORESEE THAT OUR COUNTRY WILL CONTINUE TO APPOINT RATHER THAN ELECT SUPREME COURT JUSTICES?

Replacing appointed justices with elected justices just might mean that Jesse Ventura and Arnold Schwarzenegger will one day be not only governors of big states, but also members of the Supreme Court. So I’m not sure empowering the people to elect Supreme Court justices would be an improvement. Moreover, the Supreme Court is often unpredictable. Its Nixon appointees and Reagan appointees have, in some cases, taken liberal positions with which conservatives today are unhappy. So courts are less predictable in terms of expected political partisanship than we think. Remember, the justices serve for life. My own view is that their ideological persuasion on social issues is not really the problem. The problem is more the increasing willingness of the Court to intervene in democratic elections. In Gore v. Bush, the Supreme Court gave Bush the Presidency, despite the fact that there were irregularities in the Florida voting process and despite the fact that Bush won only a plurality, not a majority, of the votes—fewer votes, actually, than Gore. The issue in my mind is: Should the Court have even been involved in deciding this case?

I’m glad the California Supreme Court refused to delay the recall, even though I was against it. Interventionist decisions effectively put the Court in the business of politics, which is contrary to the single most significant objective intended by separating the judiciary from the executive and legislative ranks: to insulate the political process from the courts and to insulate the courts from the political process. What we are seeing today is that the courts are much more politicized than they were intended to be. But even more important, the legislative and electoral processes are being “judicialized”—turned into a set of questions that the judiciary is supposed to answer. Those who argue for judicial conservatism ought to be consistent and admit that judicial conservatism requires the courts to stay out of and away from elections—just as far away as they can. The very opposite has happened in recent years.

IF YOU COULD PICK ONLY ONE, WHICH OF THE FOUNDING FATHERS OF THE AMERICAN REPUBLIC DO YOU THINK WAS MOST COMMITTED TO THE IDEALS OF DEMOCRACY—IN THE LOFTIEST SENSE—AND WHY?

Well, there's a paradox in answering this question. The founder who was, I believe, most committed to democracy, to the decentralization of power, to participation and engagement by citizens, and to civic education for all citizens was Thomas Jefferson. And he would be my choice—except for the fact that he was a proponent of slavery. One of the problems of the American Constitution is that it instituted a republic for those who were citizens and a slave regime for those who were of African origin—and, of course, it left women out of the mix completely for the next 100 years. So, with the status of slaves and women as citizens taken into consideration, then I would probably have to choose Samuel Adams or maybe William Penn—one of those founders who was not only a true small “d” democrat, but who was also a critic of slavery. And from that point of view, perhaps Sam Adams would be my choice.

But in terms of overall influence on America, the quality and character of democracy, the role that citizens ought to play—bracketing slavery—Jefferson's the man. But the problem is, of course, you really can't bracket slavery.

A SPECIAL COMMITTEE AT THE NATIONAL ARCHIVES RECENTLY CREATED THE OUR DOCUMENTS PROJECT, WHICH COMPILED THE 100 MOST IMPORTANT DOCUMENTS THAT SHAPED AMERICA FROM ITS FOUNDING THROUGH 1965. ASSUMING THAT THERE WILL BE A FOLLOW-UP LIST OF THE MOST IMPORTANT DOCUMENTS FROM 1966 TO THE PRESENT, AND WERE YOU GIVEN THE OPPORTUNITY TO AUTHOR ONE OF THEM IN 2003, WHAT WOULD THE SUBJECT MATTER BE?

As a preface, let me say that the most important documents since 1965 have unfortunately been negative, not positive ones, with respect to promoting American democracy. The refusal of the United States to sign onto the International Criminal Tribunal; its withdrawal from the Kyoto Protocol on global warming; the Buckley v. Valeo decision that treats money as speech and therefore gives Constitutional sanction to the free play of money in elections—these are all vital documents. Unfortunately, they are not documents that help create American democracy, but that undermine American democracy.

One document that I helped conceive and write, and that I would love to have recognized as part of our great American democratic heritage is the Declaration of Interdependence. While acknowledging the traditional role that sovereignty and democratic nation states have played in securing individual rights and freedom, the Declaration of Interdependence makes clear that in today's world—a world of AIDS, ecology, telecommunications technology, global markets, terrorism, universal crime—we do, in fact, live on a sphere where individuals and nations are interdependent, and the solutions we find to the problems of the world have to be interdependent. In the language of the original Declaration of Independence, if we wish to secure “liberty and justice for all,” it will now require multi-lateral cooperation among many nations, not just the sovereign commitment of single, autonomous nations. Like it or not, interdependence is our modern reality. We now face a kind of malevolent interdependence, and we have to transform it into a benevolent interdependence. Unless all have freedom and justice, in the future none will have it—not even Americans. MU

a philosophy of education

by alan schwerin : with irene farrell towl

while centuries separate Benjamin Franklin and Alan Schwerin, these two thinkers have much in common: at home in the realm of ideas, active in philosophical societies, prolific writers, and dedicated both to free thought and the honing of clear ideas through collaborative learning.

benjamin franklin founded the American Philosophical Society in 1754, joined in his pursuit of greater understanding by local tradesmen, established professionals, fellow founding fathers, and foreign brain trusts including Lafayette, von Steuben, and Kosciusko. The Society's charter clearly states the direct link between learning and freedom, "regarding each as the support and protection of the other."

fast forward some 250 years, and take a peek at another proponent of cooperative enlightenment. As an author, teacher, president of The Bertrand Russell Society, and teacher of philosophy at Monmouth University, Alan Schwerin grapples daily with "the problems of philosophy"—a phrase that also happens to be the title of one of Russell's most influential works. Schwerin expounded on his ideas in a recent interview ...

“human beings have a variety of ideas that they act upon in their daily lives. Our diverse experiences of the world account for many of these ideas. As it happens, we rarely think about them, assuming that they are true. Given their importance in our lives, this is most unfortunate. Had we to inspect our ideas, even in a cursory manner, we would make some unsettling discoveries. As Russell and many leading philosophers have pointed out, these ordinary ideas can be vague and confused.

“Our education ought, among other things, to gently remind us of the problems with our ordinary ideas, and ought to provide us with the tools to begin to correct them. In the process, education can liberate the intellect that would otherwise remain trapped in a world of preconceived and defective notions. This is why I view interaction with students and colleagues as vital. Discourse with others—on a variety of issues—exposes all of us to different perspectives and, most importantly, helps bring our ideas into sharper focus. A university ought to provide the space for faculty and students to fashion new ideas.

“But how are we to develop our ideas? In my view, the tool that will assist us in our search for better ideas is skepticism. Part of our educational mission as teachers is to inculcate a skeptical attitude in students—not the destructive skepticism of a few radical thinkers, but the moderate or mitigated skepticism endorsed by Socrates and Russell. The assertions and viewpoints of others are not likely to enthrall us once we adopt this attitude. And if we exercise this skepticism on ourselves—a procedure not easily accomplished—we diminish the hold our prejudices have on us. Human beings are the prisoners of their beliefs. To free ourselves, we need to critically reconsider our ideas and search for less defective ideas. This search will benefit us individually, and ultimately serve the good of our society.”

Plato's cave allegory from The Republic presents the ideals of education, suggests Dr. Schwerin. “The philosopher Plato argued that we are ethically obligated to help each other break the bonds that keep us captive: our own flawed misconceptions can be challenged and refined, if not replaced. True freedom is only possible if we help each other realize and support the truth.”

This conception of education is not unique to philosophy, asserts Dr. Schwerin. Professors from many other disciplines have similar cooperative learning goals, and want to share the value of collaborative thinking with their students. “Students need to draw on the passion for knowledge and understanding from their professors and fellow students.”

Franklin asserted that “all philosophical experiments that let light into the nature of things tend to increase the power of man over matter, and multiply the conveniences or pleasures of life.” Similarly, the Bertrand Russell Society's motto states that “The good life is one inspired by love and guided by knowledge.” These are surely sentiments that others would endorse. MU

STUDY ABROAD PROGRAM

BY SHERRY CONOHAN
WITH AMY L. GURCHENSKY '02

IT'S AN EXPERIENCE YOU'LL NEVER FORGET.

That's the advice Robyn L. Asaro, Study Abroad Coordinator, offers to students interested in participating in one of the University's three study abroad programs. Under the direction of Dr. Saliba Sarsar, Associate Vice President for Academic Program Initiatives, the study abroad office has made substantial progress since its establishment.

 IN JANUARY 2001, the first program was introduced to the Monmouth community at Regent's College in London. A year later, the study abroad office was promoting a five-week summer language curriculum in Madrid, Spain. More recently, a new overseas opportunity was designed for those students interested in studying Down Under at Macquarie University in Sydney, Australia.

Regent's College, located in the inner circle of Regent's Park, is the only "green" campus in London. Surroundings include lakes, swans, fields, Queen Mary's Rose Garden, and more. It is, by far, one of the loveliest sections in all of London.

Macquarie University provides students with a cosmopolitan atmosphere. Located 11 miles from the central hub of Sydney, students reside on a beautiful, sprawling campus. Macquarie is also renowned for its academic superiority and diverse student life.

Although enrollment at Macquarie is over 27,000, Regent's provides a smaller close-knit community of about 2,000 students. Despite this difference, both institutions of higher learning provide a relaxed environment for all.

In the five-week Madrid program, students are immersed in the language and culture of Spain. The school is operated by Enforex, Center of International Studies, and is situated in the heart of downtown Madrid. During this accelerated program, students earn six credits and satisfy their cross-cultural requirement.

In addition to the three established programs, the study abroad office gives guidance to those students who desire to participate in a program outside of the University. Sarsar also hopes to develop other venues in Italy and Mexico in the future.

Asaro's hard work and dedication to the department is not overlooked, especially on the successful execution of the London program. Sarsar declares that "she has brought about a miracle in creating a quality program in a short period of time." Asaro also compiles reflective essays and photos of former study abroad students in an active memory book that prospective students often view.

The growth of the study abroad office has had a valuable effect on the University. Each year, the office manages to recruit roughly seventy-five students for their three international curricula. Sarsar says that "any university without a solid study abroad program is missing a great deal." He also recognizes the office as an important asset to globalize the University.

To emphasize the theories and ideas taught on campus, Monmouth requires all undergraduate students to participate in the Experiential Education program, which is a prerequisite for graduation. Involvement in a study abroad program fulfills this condition by integrating academic knowledge taught on campus to the external environment.

The program requirements for studying abroad are simple: Students must be in a sophomore standing or higher with a grade point average of 2.75. Asaro notes that tuition is the same and that all award monies apply as well.

Monmouth's study abroad website includes details on the London, Madrid, and Sydney programs and a photo gallery. The website also lists some benefits of studying abroad including increasing self-confidence and self-understanding, increasing maturity, and gaining an appreciation for countries and cultures.

Former study abroad students agree that the experience has left a remarkable impression on them. Cheryl Mecka, a senior who was part of the fall 2002 group to London, explains that her time abroad was life-altering. She adds, "The people I met and bonded with and the experiences I had are irreplaceable." Although initially hesitant, Mecka took the initiative because she did not want to regret the lost opportunity.

The people I met and bonded with and the experiences I had are irreplaceable.

Justin Kainas, a senior majoring in communications, went to Madrid this past summer and admitted to being "a little scared" prior to his departure. Now, he encourages everyone to study abroad before entering the working world.

Jeffrey Humbert, another participant of the London program and the current editor of The Outlook, adds that he has "become more diversified, not just in [his] lifestyle, but also in [his] beliefs and views of other countries."

Like Asaro, Humbert shares the following advice to interested students: "It's the experience of a lifetime, and I'm so glad I didn't miss out on it." MU

MIKA romanoff '92

HOW A lifelong passion HELPED LAUNCH A SUCCESSFUL PROFESSION

BY IRENE FARRELL TOWT

FROM THE LAND OF NOKIA ELECTRONICS, the great composer Jean Sibelius, and, yes (according to some Finns), the “genuine” Santa Claus, comes another Scandinavian export of interest to many at Monmouth University: Mika Romanoff.

An alumnus from the Class of '92, Romanoff found his way from the land of the reindeer to the shores of the Hawks via the plains of the Golden Gophers (University of Minnesota). “If I knew it was going to be that cold in Minneapolis, I would have stayed in Lahti!” Lahti is Romanoff’s hometown, located 60 miles north of Helsinki, where he was active in winter sports, including cross-country skiing and ice hockey.

Currently an investment consultant with Prudential-Bache International, LTD where he handles the portfolios of professional international athletes, Romanoff took a short break from his globetrotting agenda to visit MU, stop in on his teammate and now head men’s soccer coach Shannon Poser '92, and meet with the alumni office for this interview. ...

“I ENJOYED the whole experience at Monmouth University,” says Romanoff. At first it was a challenge to fit in and to be part of the community, but my time there was very rewarding.”

In fact, Romanoff managed to find a place right in the center of it all—as a mid-fielder with the soccer team. He played from his sophomore through his senior years, and helped the Hawks win the conference championship in 1991. “He was a great asset to the Monmouth University team and a key player in the win over FDU that garnered us the NEC title,” says Poser.

“I ENJOYED THE WHOLE EXPERIENCE AT MONMOUTH UNIVERSITY”...

Romanoff graduated in 1992 with a major in international business, coached women’s soccer for several years, and applied his business savvy to several brokerage positions in Finland through the balance of the '90s. He was recruited for the Prudential-Bache position in London, where he has been able to amply exercise both his love of sports and his financial acumen.

Though he misses the good ol’ US of A—and particularly the Big Apple—he manages to keep in contact with a few close friends from Monmouth U.

He also has fond memories of his alma mater: “Monmouth has a great campus, offers proximity to major cities, and opens doors to diverse opportunities for students. It has all the things one needs, not least of all a great education.” MU

vision society

Every University has a select group of contributors who have demonstrated exceptional pride and commitment to philanthropy. Members of Monmouth University's "Vision Society," whose lifetime giving begins at $100,000, are no exception. Their generous support is a source of encouragement and inspiration to us all as we go forth and realize our vision as a "University of Regional Distinction." The University is especially honored to recognize their commitment and desire to truly make a difference. For all they do, and give, they have our deep heartfelt gratitude.

faculty, staff & administrators

No enterprise can survive without the highest level of commitment from its most important internal community; its employees. Monmouth University is no exception. In addition to their outstanding dedication to the University and its students, as demonstrated by their professionalism, insistence on quality, and spirit of cooperation, many in Monmouth's family of faculty, staff and administrators have made personal contributions in support of the University. Monmouth University is proud to recognize the meaningful commitments made by so many members of its own "family."

volunteers

Volunteers are one of the University's greatest resources. These friends, trustees, parents, alumni, and other neighbors willingly share their time and talents to generate good will, to raise needed funds, to stage events, and to further enhance the University's already notable reputation. Monmouth gratefully acknowledges the inspiration, creativity, generosity, and enthusiasm of those listed here. All of them have helped make a difference.

scholarships

Establishing a scholarship is one way to give a gift to the University that directly impacts a student's ability to receive the quality education Monmouth University provides. Scholarships are wonderful vehicles for individuals or organizations to honor a loved one or to create a legacy that ensures the donor's generosity will be remembered in the years to come. Donors are able to select either sponsored scholarships, to be renewed annually, or an endowed scholarship, which requires a minimum gift of $50,000 to establish. It is through the generosity of the donors creating or continuing to support the scholarship programs that the University was able to award grants to deserving students for this academic year. We would like to recognize the support and caring of the donors and acknowledge the creation of the following scholarships this year.

matching gift companies

Corporate matching gift programs offer a unique opportunity to employees who contribute financially to Monmouth University. Companies offering these programs will match the gifts of employees dollar-for-dollar up to prescribed limits. That can increase the impact of contributions by 100% or more. The existence of matching gift programs is a tribute to the supportive spirit of the corporate community for higher education. Monmouth University gratefully acknowledges the following companies as well as the initiative of the individual employee-donors whose gifts to the University were matched.

independent college fund of new jersey

Monmouth University continues to benefit from generous corporate and foundation support given through the Independent College Fund of New Jersey. Begun in 1953, the Fund makes a single, united annual request to corporations and foundations on behalf of the 14 member colleges. For 49 years, the Fund has continued to secure corporate financial support for the State's independent colleges and to promote a greater understanding of the importance of maintaining the opportunity for choice between public and private education.

The Independent College Fund of New Jersey represents all of the State's fully accredited, privately controlled colleges and universities, except those that are engaged primarily in religious studies.

The following donors contributed to the Fund in calendar year 2002. Most gifts are allocated by formula although a number are designated to specific institutions. Support in 2002 for independent higher education in New Jersey through the Fund totaled $1,600,418.62.
