NATIONAL: JUMP IN ENTHUSIASM FOR 2024 RACE

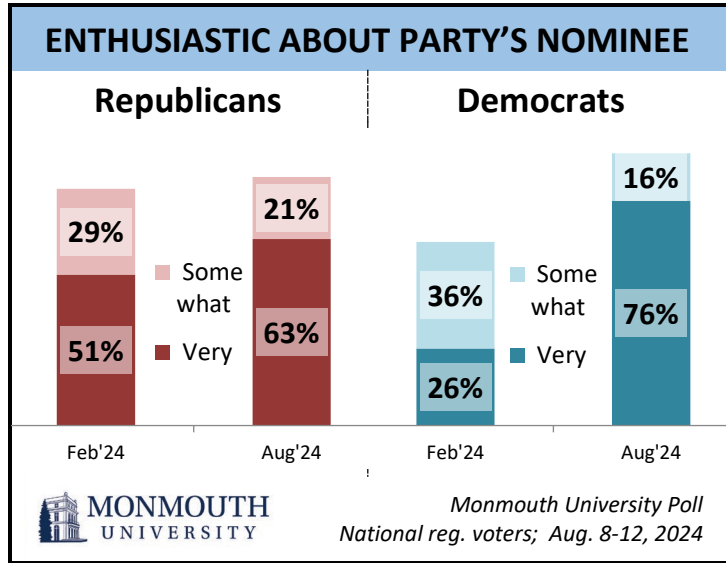

Harris picks up support among young voters and ‘double haters’

West Long Branch, NJ – Democrats’ enthusiasm has skyrocketed since they swapped their presidential nominee. The latest national Monmouth (“Mon-muth”) University Poll finds voter support for Vice President Kamala Harris slightly higher than it was for President Joe Biden, while the number who back former President Donald Trump has remained steady. Harris has higher favorability ratings than either Trump or Biden, which means there has been in a decline in the number of double haters, that is voters who dislike both nominees. Harris also has a clear advantage over Trump in being seen as having the necessary stamina for the job and matches or slightly edges her Republican opponent on understanding people’s concerns, representing American values, and bringing about change.

A huge shift in enthusiasm is the most vivid finding in the poll. While the number of voters who were at least somewhat enthusiastic about the Trump versus Biden rematch had been increasing throughout the year, it never topped 50%. Now that the contest is Trump versus Harris, voter enthusiasm has risen to 68%. The biggest jump has been among Democrats (from 46% in June to 85% now), but there has also been a notable increase in enthusiasm among independents (from 34% to 53%). Among Republicans, enthusiasm for the Trump-Harris contest (71%) is identical to what it was for the Trump-Biden rematch in June (71%).

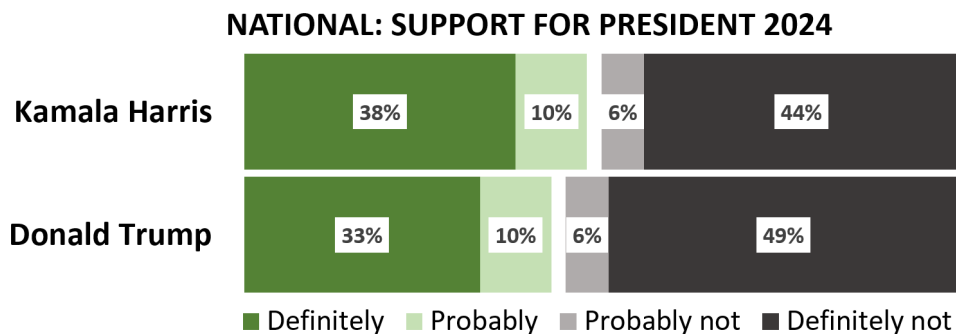

Monmouth also asked specifically about enthusiasm for each party’s choice of nominee. The national electorate’s enthusiasm for Trump as the Republican nominee (41%) is basically unchanged from February (40%). However, enthusiasm for Harris as the Democratic standard-bearer (47%) is significantly higher than it was for Biden earlier this year (32%). Currently, Democratic voters are slightly more enthusiastic about having Harris as their nominee (92%) than Republicans are about having Trump at the top of their ticket (84%). Back in February, Republican enthusiasm for Trump was similarly high (80%), but Democratic enthusiasm about the prospect of Biden being their nominee was significantly lower (62%).

“This is clearly a different ballgame. The nominee change has raised the ceiling for potential Democratic support in the presidential contest by a small but crucial amount, at least for now,” said Patrick Murray, director of the independent Monmouth University Polling Institute.

Just under half of registered voters say they will either definitely (38%) or probably (10%) vote for Harris in November and, in a separate question, just over 4 in 10 will definitely (33%) or probably (10%) support Trump. About half say they will definitely not vote for Trump (49%), while a somewhat smaller number say they definitely will not vote for Harris (44%). Trump support levels are virtually unchanged from Monmouth polls conducted since the fall. Support for Harris is stronger than it was for Biden, both in terms of total overall support (48% compared with between 42% and 44% for Biden between September and June) as well as the number who have definitely ruled her out (44% compared with a higher 48% to 51% for Biden).

Harris’s entry into the race has improved Democratic support among younger voters (53% of 18- to 35-year-old voters) compared to where Biden stood with this group two months ago (33%). At the same time, she has maintained Biden-level support among older voters, including those age 65 and over (51%, similar to Biden’s 52% support level with this group in June). Harris gets 62% support from Hispanic, Black, and Asian voters, 57% support from white voters who graduated college, and 33% support from white voters without a college degree. These results are a few points higher than where Biden stood with these groups in June.

One feature of the Trump-Biden race was the so-called double haters – voters who held an unfavorable view of both candidates. Nearly 1 in 5 registered voters fell into this category when Biden was still running. That number remains virtually unchanged as it applies to Biden and Trump in the current poll – with 17% of voters not having a favorable opinion of either man. However, with Harris now in the race, the number of double haters for the

OPINION OF BOTH PARTIES’ LEADERS
Favorable both	1%	Favorable both	1%
Fav. TRUMP only	42%	Fav. TRUMP only	42%
Fav. BIDEN only	39%	Fav. HARRIS only	47%
Favorable neither	17%	Favorable neither	8%
		Monmouth University Poll National reg. voters, Aug. 8-12, 2024

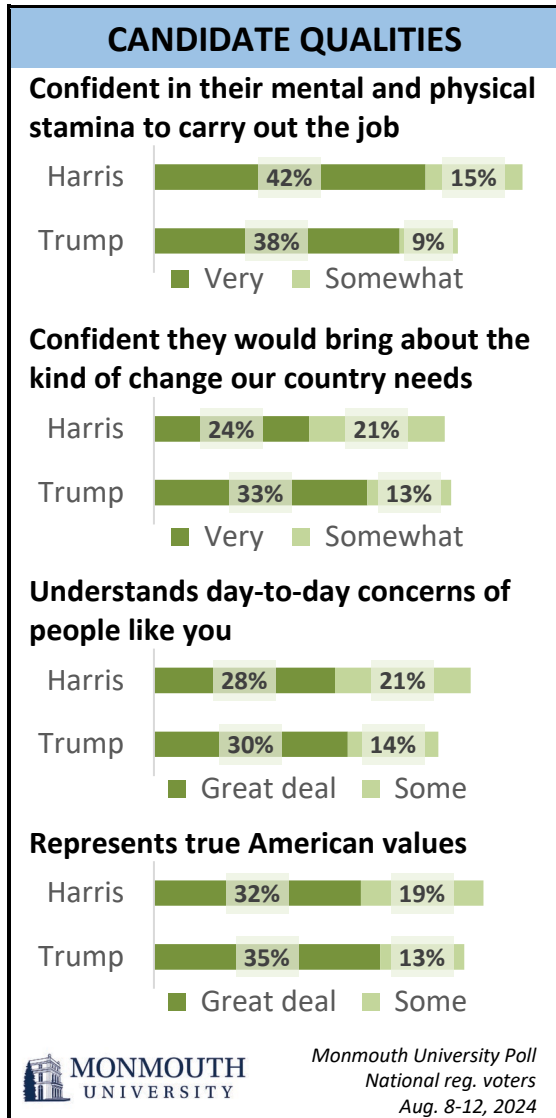

current nominees has been cut in half. When favorability ratings for Harris and Trump are combined, just 8% do not have a favorable opinion of either candidate. Monmouth’s June poll found that 54% of the double haters were not supporting either candidate, with 28% backing Biden and 19% backing Trump. In the current poll, Harris actually holds majority support (53%) among these Biden-Trump double haters, with just 11% voting for Trump and 35% backing neither candidate.

“Taking Biden out of the mix and replacing him with Harris has significantly altered a key metric in this race. As we reported last month, Trump-Biden double haters want to shake things up, but they are wary of change that is too authoritarian. Harris appears to provide most of this group with the fresh outlook they desire,” said Murray.

	IMPACT OF OTHER CANDIDATES ON SUPPORT OF MAJOR PARTY NOMINEES
	2-party support only	With definite other cand. support	With all potential other support
Def/prob Trump voter	43%	42%	36%
Def/prob Harris voter	48%	47%	41%
Other candidate	n/a	4%	18%
Neither	9%	7%	4%
		Monmouth University Poll National reg. voters, Aug. 8-12, 2024

Monmouth asked about potential support for four independent and third-party candidates, although none have yet been officially certified for the ballot in all 50 states. The number of voters who say they will definitely support one of these candidates includes 2% for independent Robert F. Kennedy, Jr.,

1% each for independent Cornel West and the Green Party’s Jill Stein, and less than 1% for the Libertarian Party’s Chase Oliver. Combining those who say they will definitely or probably vote for one of these options shows Kennedy with 14% potential support, Stein with 4%, West with 3%, and Oliver with 2%. The potential vote for these other candidates seems to have an equal impact on both major party nominees. When definite independent and third-party support is included in the mix, Trump and Harris each lose just one percentage point from their initial backing. When all potential support for these four candidates is included, each major party nominee loses seven points off their initial support levels.

The ability to simply carry out the job of president dominated the election conversation before Biden dropped out. Currently, 57% of voters are at least somewhat confident that Harris has the mental and physical stamina necessary for the presidency, while 47% say the same about Trump. Confidence in Trump’s ability is a few points lower than in February (51%), but confidence in Harris’s ability is significantly higher than it was for Biden earlier this year (32%).

“The center of gravity has clearly shifted when it comes to talking about the candidates’ ability to carry out the job. Of course, the fact that this metric is not even higher for the 59-year-old is just another example of how entrenched partisan tribalism has become in the American electorate,” said Murray.

Harris (45%) matches Trump (46%) when it comes to confidence in bringing about the kind of change our country needs, although more voters say they are very confident in Trump. Harris has a small advantage when voters are asked how much the candidates understand the day-to-day concerns of people like them – 49% say she understands this a great deal or some compared with 44% who say the same about Trump. Harris (51%) edges Trump (48%) when it comes to being seen as representing true American values either a great deal or some.

In other poll findings, 48% of voters currently support the Democratic congressional candidate in their U.S. House district, while 46% back the Republican. Monmouth’s June poll showed this generic national House ballot at 48% for the Republicans and 45% for the Democrats.

In terms of personal ratings, Harris (48% favorable and 50% unfavorable) has an advantage over Trump (43% favorable and 56% unfavorable), although neither candidate’s rating is a net positive. Turning to their running mates, Minnesota Governor Tim Walz has a net positive rating (37% favorable and 30% unfavorable) while Ohio U.S. Senator J.D. Vance has a net negative one (36% favorable and 41% unfavorable). About one-third of voters have not heard of or have no opinion of Walz and about a quarter cannot rate Vance. Among other presidential candidates, Kennedy has a net negative 32% favorable and 42% unfavorable rating. The vast majority of voters do not know enough about the other three presidential candidates included in the poll to offer an opinion on them.

The Monmouth University Poll was conducted by telephone and online from August 8 to 12, 2024 with 801 registered voters in the United States. The question results in this release have a margin of error +/- 4.0 percentage points. The poll was conducted by the Monmouth University Polling Institute in West Long Branch, NJ.

METHODOLOGY

The Monmouth University Poll was sponsored and conducted by the Monmouth University Polling Institute from August 8 to 12, 2024 with a probability-based national random sample of 801 voters. Monmouth is responsible for all aspects of the survey design, data weighting and analysis. Interviews were conducted in English, and included 145 live landline telephone interviews, 280 live cell phone interviews, and 376 online surveys via a cell phone text invitation. Interviewing services were provided by Braun Research using telephone numbers randomly selected from a list of active registered voters obtained from Aristotle. The full sample is weighted for region, age, gender, race and listed partisanship based on the voter list and education based on US Census information (2022 CPS and 2021 ACS one-year surveys), with adjustments made for self-reported 2020 presidential vote. For results based on this sample, one can say with 95% confidence that the error attributable to sampling has a maximum margin of plus or minus 4.0 percentage points adjusted for sample design effects (1.32). Sampling error can be larger for sub-groups (see table below). In addition to sampling error, one should bear in mind that question wording and practical difficulties in conducting surveys can introduce error or bias into the findings of opinion polls.
